PREK EXPANSION GRANT

Pending state funding availability, the Division of Early Childhood anticipates announcing the release of the Prekindergarten Expansion Grant FY 2021 in February, 2020. This state-funded grant will expand access to high-quality prekindergarten for three-year-olds and four-year-olds from families with household incomes up to 300 percent of Federal Poverty Guidelines (FPG). There will be a technical assistance webinar to provide additional information regarding the grant application process. The webinar information and all updates regarding the Prekindergarten Expansion Grant will be found at earlychildhood.marylandpublicschools.org/prek-grade-2.

Family Child Care is the Backbone of Maryland’s Mixed-Delivery System

Maryland prides itself on a diverse-delivery system, and it will be important that all settings—including Family Child Care—have the resources and quality supports needed to thrive.

By Steven Hicks, Assistant State Superintendent, Division of Early Childhood

As I shielded my eyes from the bright morning sun filtering through the trees, a deer darted across the road and in front of my car. I had just turned off the main highway and was heading towards Kay’s Playhouse, where I would be taking my first visit to a Family Child Care (FCC) provider. I turned again at the whimsical sign, crept down the long driveway to the ranch-style house, and parked behind a small white van. I walked up the wide steps, past a colorful array of mums and opened the front door. At once I could tell this was an enchanted place. Orange, yellow and red crepe streamers hung from the ceiling like a fall canopy. Six children, varying in ages from 14 months to 6 years old, were gathered in the kitchen awaiting the breakfast ritual to begin. Two girls were lined up to wash their hands, while an older boy was focused on directions for setting the table, meticulously dictated by Rebecca Hancock. Rebecca is the owner of Kay’s Playhouse, a Maryland EXCELS program with a quality rating of 5. She’s also the teacher, cook, hygiene specialist, family engagement coordinator, before-and after-care facilitator, and so much more. FCC truly is akin to the one-room school houses of a past era, educating multiple ages in one space.
Over the last decade, Maryland has seen a decline in FCC—from 8,923 in 2009 to 5,366 in 2019. While this represents a mix of FCC home providers closing and new providers opening, the net result is a staggering 40% decline of this critical option for working parents. Echoing a national trend, approximately 54,000 licensed family child care homes closed in the United States between 2011 and 2017. While some center- and school-based programs have expanded, the net result has been fewer choices for families and a scarcity of infant and toddler care. In Maryland, the number of child care deserts—areas with an insufficient supply of licensed child care—has expanded to the extent that 51% of the population live in child care deserts, reflective of the national average. What this means for parents is that it’s increasingly difficult to find child care options that meet location, quality, and household budget needs.

Maryland prides itself on a diverse-delivery system, and it will be important that all settings—including FCC—have the resources and quality supports needed to thrive. The Division of Early Childhood is committed to supporting FCC so that these small businesses grow throughout our communities, especially in child care deserts and rural areas.

To that end, senior Division staff met with the Board of the Maryland State Family Child Care Association during its annual conference in fall 2019 to discuss ways in which the state can be a helpful partner. We also held the first of many town hall meetings solely focused on FCC. We found there are huge areas of need, such as administrative support, reduction in paperwork, professional development, forging partnerships with schools, addressing substitutes, and connecting providers to resources. To begin to address some of the feedback, the state has included supports for FCC in its Preschool Development Grant Birth through Five renewal proposal, including significantly increasing the start-up grants to FCC providers and conducting a statewide FCC capacity study to better understand and address the declining numbers of FCC providers.

Last month, the Kirwan Commission voted 19-3 on its $4 billion educational improvement recommendations to state lawmakers. These recommendations—to be implemented over the next decade—include expanding PreK for three- and four-year old children; providing workforce and program quality supports; increasing the number of Family Support Centers and Judy Center Early Learning Hubs; and fully-funding the Infants and Toddlers Program. These proposed investments provide opportunities to further support Maryland’s mixed-delivery system, including expanding and promoting FCC.

“What’s nice about a family home setting is that there are so many opportunities for the provider to integrate, in a natural way, the kind of skills that are important for building a learning foundation later on.”

“What we’ve seen in Maryland, and across the country, is a decline in family care providers. It’s just a tough business. Family care providers, especially in rural areas, provide a really necessary service and help to fill that void. We’re working with [MSFCCA] and others to try and solve this issue.”

-Steven Hicks
Throughout the morning at Kay’s Playhouse, I saw mothers drop off their kids; a group of children mixing and baking muffins; and one tearful child comforted by the soothing motion of being enveloped in the arms of a caring adult and feeling the slow, continuous motion of a rocking chair. I can see how valuable it is to have FCC as a choice for parents and part of a robust mixed-delivery system. FCC provides a smooth, nurturing transition for children as they move from home to FCC and then later to school. For some children, this is the right and necessary place to thrive, and we need to do everything we can to support their learning and development.

Grants and Contracts

The Division of Early Childhood (DEC) has several grants and contracts with key partners across the state of Maryland. As the DEC moves forward with many of these opportunities through Request for Proposal (RFP) or Request for Bid (RFB), we invite the child care provider community to pass this information along to anyone who may qualify. This includes the many contract/grant partners that have assisted in building the great early childhood education system in Maryland. We appreciate your help getting the word out to encourage participation in the application process.

Grants/Contracts currently under review

The Office of Child Care (OCC) will be calling for applications in 2020 for two critically important aspects of the child care community.

1. The Statewide Coordinating Entity (SCE) for the Maryland Child Care Resource Center Network (MCCRCN’s): Applicants will be applying to be the coordinating entity for the 13 local child care resource centers throughout the State.

2. Resource and Referral Services for Families: Applicants will be applying to coordinate resource and referral services for families that are trying to locate child care services in their area.

These opportunities are unique in that they were previously combined into one opportunity, but are now being viewed as separate grants/contracts. Please be aware that both of these opportunities will be available in 2020, so subscribe to our mailing list to stay “in the loop”!

What is Marylandchild.org?

Since the day I walked through the doors of the Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE), I vowed that the OCC would improve communication with the provider community and to the families of the children throughout our state. I thought communication would be easy since there are so many means to communicate: social media, websites, newsletters, emails, flyers, mail, etc. While looking at all the types of communication we had and reviewing what the Administration for Children and Families (ACF) defines as “consumer education,” it dawned on me that Maryland did not have a one-stop-shop for child care information, services for families and resources for both communities. That is where Marylandchild.org comes in!

As part of the Reauthorization of the Child Care Development Block Grant (CCDBG) of 2014, the federal government made it a priority that all states must provide a “consumer education website” that is consumer-friendly, easily accessible and compliant with the Americans with Disabilities ACT (ADA). This means all materials should be in plain language and consider the abilities of the targeted audience, including home language, disabilities and how access to aids or services for receiving information can be available in alternative formats at no cost.

There are also seven key components that must be included in the consumer education website, which are:

1. Policies for licensing and monitoring and inspecting child care providers, policies and procedures related to criminal background checks for child care providers, and the offenses that prevent individuals from serving as child care providers;

2. Information on the availability of child care providers, searchable by zip code;

3. Quality rating of child care providers, if available for the provider;

4. Provider-specific monitoring and inspection reports;
5. Aggregate number of deaths and serious injuries (for each provider category and licensing status) and instances of substantiated child abuse in child care settings each year;

6. Referral to local child care resource and referral organizations;

7. Directions on how parents can contact MSDE and other programs to better understand information on the website.

In addition to the information required by the CCDBG, Maryland included other features that make it more informative, user-friendly, and easy to understand.

Marylandchild.org is made possible by federal funding. The OCC partnered with Johns Hopkins University, IDEALS Institute, for assistance with developing the site.

The homepage has an easy to navigate block system that guides the user to what they need, starting with an "I want to..." statement and easy-to-select tiles under the heading.

On the homepage in the upper right hand corner, there is a small blue circle with a person in the middle with their arms spread. This is the Accessibility Menu that allows users to have the page read to them, choose a different contrast for the screen, increase spacing of the text, increase text size and stop any animation that may be a distraction, among others.

We have included an extensive listing of languages the site text can be converted to so numerous families in Maryland can have access to information to help them make important choices for their children.

There is also an easy-to-use “Contact Us” button at the bottom left of the page for families and providers to request further assistance or ask questions.

We’d love to hear from you

In addition to these features, Maryland has worked to implement many of the best practices recommended by the federal government. Please tell your families and colleagues about the new Marylandchild.org website!

Outreach to Families

A Purple Evening

The 13th annual women’s event A Purple Evening, at M&T Bank Stadium, gave Maryland EXCELS a tremendous opportunity to connect with families (mothers, grandmothers, aunts, and more) and friends of young children. We interacted with over 1,500 women attendees—educating them about the importance of high quality child care and early education, while promoting Maryland EXCELS’ programs.

Three hundred attendees submitted raffle tickets to win one of two gift baskets containing items donated by Lakeshore Learning Materials and Maryland EXCELS.

Oriole Bird Visits

The Oriole Bird visited the following four Maryland EXCELS programs in December 2019: The Goddard School of Arnold, Hampton Lane Child Development Center, Saint Agnes Extended Care Program and Childtime of Bel Air.

These programs were randomly selected from nominations sent in by families enrolled in the programs. Maryland EXCELS provided programs a flier to share with their families. The flier invited families to nominate their programs and tell “what makes your child care special and high quality.” Over 120 nominations were submitted. Here are a few...

The Goddard School of Arnold “...is an extension of our family. They have treated my sons wonderfully while teaching them well beyond their years.” - Annie Sickmen

“There’s no early childhood education learning center quite like Hampton Lane [Child Development Center]! The teachers that they have in each classroom (2’s, 3’s, and 4’s) are all phenomenal and care so deeply about each and every child under their care. They have themes of the week where the children learn new themes that they dive deeply into. They are constantly creating incredible art projects, taking music classes, exploring outside, and learning every step of the way. They are a hidden gem in Towson and every parents’ dream-come-true preschool!” - Heather Darney

“The St. Agnes Extended Care Program is absolutely AMAZING! It allows my daughter to learn and play in an environment that promotes kindness! My daughter and other students often don’t want to leave when it’s time to go home! I am thankful for this program.” - Kay Taylor

“The caring teachers at Childtime in Bel Air take the time to get work with each child on the level that’s best for their development. The creative activities are stimulating and educational. My son (2 years old) loves going to Childtime because he’s excited to see his teachers and friends. Additionally, Childtime works seamlessly with the Harford County Infants and Toddlers program to coordinate specialty instruction for my son to help him catch up with his classmates. Our family has enjoyed the high-quality care provided by Childtime for the last 1.5 years.” - Sarah Brochu
Have You Met Kacey—the Maryland EXCELS Koality Bear?

Kacey debuted in fall of 2019 at A Purple Evening. You’ll see Kacey in materials focused on helping families find high quality child care and early education programs. Be on the lookout for this friendly face.

Managing Behaviors That Challenge Us

Maryland EXCELS, in conjunction with Abilities Network and Harford Community College, presented a valuable conference on November 9, 2019 entitled “Managing Behaviors That Challenge Us.” The conference boasted a phenomenal keynote speaker, Cayla Weller. Ms. Weller is a special educator with Cecil County Public Schools. As someone diagnosed with ADHD as an adult, she offered a unique perspective into the world of ADHD. Ms. Weller provided tips, tools, and suggestions for helping even our youngest students to be successful while in our care.

The conference included three training sessions to guide participants in preparing classrooms, students, and themselves to optimize positive behaviors and deal effectively with less desirable behaviors. Participants were very pleased with the information and delivery system and asked for additional trainings in the near future! We’ll keep you posted.

Enhance Your Early Learning Environment and Save

Maryland EXCELS interacted with families at Thrive by Five—an Essential Family Engagement Conference. This conference was held by Howard County Family Institute, Office of Children and Families on Saturday, November 16, 2019. The conference focused on helping families build a solid foundation for their child’s learning habits, skills and expectations—with the ultimate goal of preparing them for kindergarten and a lifetime of learning.

Outreach to Programs

Lakeshore Training—Take Two!

The July 2019 Inclusion Training at Lakeshore Learning Materials, hosted by Quality Assurance Specialists (QAS), was so well received that the QAS held a second training on November 14, 2019. Feedback from attendees of this event was very positive. Comments highlighted that the training taught them ways to create inclusion, institute “multicultural markers for children to view themselves” and meet special needs within their programs.

Coffee and Camaraderie

The Baltimore County Directors and Providers Coffee Hour events have proved quite popular. Held the first Thursday of each month, these events give important opportunities to voice opinions, ask questions and network with fellow providers. The next coffee hour will be February 6, 2020. Special Needs Technical Assistance and Training for Caregivers of Infants and Toddlers

The Special Needs Technical Assistance and Training for Caregivers of Infants and Toddlers grant provides comprehensive statewide technical assistance and training for caregivers who are providing care services to special needs children, birth through 3 years of age. These children must be enrolled in regulated family child care homes; licensed child care centers; and facilities operating under the Arc of Maryland Programs and children in Foster Care are also included.

Child Care for Medically Fragile Children Birth to Five

The Child Care for Medically Fragile Children Birth to Five grant provides medically-based child care and early education services to children with medical diagnoses and those who have developmental delays, physical disabilities, and behavioral issues requiring specialized care.

Zero to Three has been training trainers on Critical Competencies

Look for the 45-hour Critical Competencies for Infant-Toddler Educators in 2020. This in-depth training was developed to fill the gaps for infant-toddler educators. It provides a diversity, inclusion, and equity lens that can and should be applied to all practices and services aimed at supporting our children and families.
Prince George’s Child Resource Center sponsored its seventh annual Director’s Institute at Newton White Mansion in Mitchellville, MD on October 23, 2019. Eighty-five child care center directors and assistant directors along with Maryland State Department of Education Credentialing Branch Chief Angeline Bishop-Oshoko and Agneatha Wright, Deputy Branch Chief were in attendance. The Director’s Institute increases the capacity of child care center owners, directors and assistant directors to build, nurture and maintain high quality developmentally appropriate programs that support young learners while providing leadership that promotes the health and well-being of all adults who parent, nurture and/or work with young children.

The theme for the 2019 Institute was “Building Your Bounce: Strategies to Support Adult Resilience.” Training was conducted by Chris Kelley, a certified trainer for the Devereux Center for Resilient Children. The Devereux Center for Resilient Children Adult Resilience Initiative focuses on promoting the health and well-being of all adults who parent, nurture and/or work with young children. The training received by those in attendance was designed to explore the importance of taking care of and promoting social and emotional health of the caregiver caring for young children. The critical connection between children’s resilience and the health and wellness of the adults in children’s lives cannot be underestimated. The training guided participants through reflective activities with an opportunity to self-reflect on their own well-being and then take action to better support resilience in themselves and others.

Some of the takeaways mentioned by those in attendance included cultivating an attitude of gratitude, exploring personal resilience with staff and helping them build resilience, being more considerate of what staff members, parents and children are going through in their personal lives and being optimistic so that the positivity will resonate through staff, students and parents.

It was a great day, in a great place, with great training and great people who are already looking forward to Director’s Institute 2020!

Many child care associations in Maryland offer training as a benefit of becoming a member. While we understand that there is a cost to membership, training included within the association membership fee is not eligible for training reimbursement. Membership fees are non-reimbursable.

Accurate census count critical for Maryland kids

FACT: Children under the age of 5 had the highest undercount of any age group in the 2010 Census.

Population statistics, based on the number of people counted in the most recent census, determine how much money every state gets from the federal government. Whether Maryland receives its fair share over the next decade depends on counting everyone in the 2020 Census. But funds for children’s programs are distributed based on the number of children counted, not the number of people counted.

When young children are not counted, support for programs, such as health insurance, hospitals, child care, food assistance, schools, and early childhood development, is impacted because the more children there are, the greater the need.

Young children most likely to be missed tend to live with:
- Foster families.
- Multiple families.
- People who are not related to them.
- Grandparents, single parents, or young adults.
- Individuals with limited ability to speak English.
- Renters or people who have moved.
- Parents or guardians with lower incomes or without a permanent home.

HOW YOU CAN HELP

- Emphasize that the census counts everyone where they live and sleep most of the time, even if the living arrangement is temporary or the parents of the child do not live there.
- If the child truly spends equal amounts of time between two homes, count them where they stayed on Census Day, April 1. Coordinate with the other parent or caregiver, if possible, so the child is not counted at both homes.
- If it’s not clear where the child lives or sleeps most of the time, count them where they stayed on Census Day, April 1.
- Explain to service providers and families that responding to the census helps determine $675 billion in local funding for programs such as food stamps (also called SNAP), the National School Lunch Program, and the Children’s Health Insurance Program (CHIP). When children are missed in the census, these programs miss out on funding that is based on the number of children counted.
- Explain that filling out the census yourself, on your own schedule, is easier than having to respond when a census worker knocks on your door. Remind these households that the form should only take about 10 minutes to fill out and can be done online or over the phone, in addition to mailing it back.
- Encourage moms with young children to ask other household members to count them and their children on the form if others live in the household.
- Emphasize that parents should include babies on census forms, even if they are still in the hospital on April 1.

Title I funds can be used to meet the requirements for family engagement including Ready At Five’s Learning Parties!

Title I, Part A is contained in the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA), which was signed by President Obama on December 10, 2015. This legislation reauthorizes the 50-year-old Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA). Title I, Part A is a federal program that provides financial assistance to local school systems and schools with high percentages of poor children to support the academic achievement of disadvantaged students. All twenty-four local education agencies in Maryland receive Title I funds.

These funds provide additional academic support and learning opportunities to help low-achieving children who attend Title I schools master challenging curricula and meet state standards. Title I funds support extra instruction in reading and mathematics, additional teachers, materials of instruction, as well as after-school and summer programs to extend and reinforce the regular school curriculum.

Learning Parties are interactive, hands-on, parent/child parties that promote young children’s development of school readiness skills. Based on the belief that parents are their child’s first teacher, Learning Parties teach parents how to make everyday moments learning moments through playing, singing, talking, reading, and engaging in fun activities. Originally developed by Children’s Resources International and modified by Ready At Five, the Learning Party curricula support the seven domains of learning: Language & Literacy, Math, Science, Social Foundations, Physical Well-Being and Motor Development, Social Studies and Fine Arts, in addition to the Parent Leadership Learning Party, which was developed in collaboration with experts at EPIC (Every Person Influences Children). Parent Leadership Learning Party materials were developed with Maryland State Department of Education, Division of Early Childhood, as part of the Family Engagement Initiative, funded through a grant opportunity with the W.K. Kellogg Foundation.

In fact, I believe they matter the most." Pat is a graduate of Leadership Maryland Class of 2002 and Leadership Fairfax (VA) Class of 1992. She received her doctorate in Education from the University of Maryland and holds master’s degrees from Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, DC and Wheelock College in Boston. Pat was commissioned as a Deaconess in 2005 concurrent to graduating from Wesley Theological Seminary and receiving the first Certificate in Missions for work in social justice. “We are delighted to welcome Pat to Ready At Five’s work, eager to learn from her experience with a critical parent population, and to include her perspective and voice in our efforts to improve outcomes for all children across Maryland,” said Meredith Callanan, Chair of Ready At Five’s Executive Leadership Committee. The goal of Ready At Five’s Executive Leadership Committee is to support its mission. We are committed to comprehensive school readiness for all Maryland children. Caring for Children and Giving Parents Piece of Mind

Pamela Funderburk doesn’t make a distinction between caring for children and running her child care business—the children are the reason she’s in business.

Funderburk, who has been a family child care provider for more than 30 years, considers the eight children in her Ms. P’s Sprouts Family Childcare program in Woodlawn part of her family.

In fact, her 3-year-old grandson and 7-month-old granddaughter are among the children she cares for and teaches every day.

“A lot of times friends and parents have told me I care too much and I need to be focused on the business side of child care. My thought on that is if you’re having somebody’s children in your home, it’s personal,” Funderburk said. “Most of my kids have been with me since they were infants, and I just can’t look at them as just a business, even though I know it’s a business,” she said. “My heart takes over.”

But Funderburk has learned over the years that having a solid structure for the business side of her child care allows her to focus on what she loves most, which is caring for children and giving parents peace of mind while their children are with her.

“The best part of my job is when I’m looking into a parent’s eyes and I realize that they trust me with their children,” she said.

Funderburk, a Quality Rated Level 5 Maryland EXCELS provider, is accredited by the National Family Child Care Association and holds a Maryland Child Care Credential. She credits Maryland EXCELS’ staff and resources with helping her achieve her goals to grow as a provider and business owner.

“It helps me to check myself. As a family provider, we’re on our own. We do our own business,” she said. “I found that I had to sit there and make myself make sure that I was implementing everything I needed to do in family child care. I’m my own director and assistant director but [Maryland] EXCELS helps me to know what I need to be doing.”

She has also been able to share the importance of Maryland EXCELS with families. When Maryland EXCELS held a Family Fun Day at Oriole Park at Camden Yards on a weekend in September, Funderburk brought some of the children from her child care.

“I thought, if I win, I’m going to take all of these kids whose parents have trouble finding care on the weekends,” she said. “I explained [to parents] that [the event is] … through Maryland EXCELS. They promote high-quality family child care, and they want to make sure we’re providing a safe environment for the kids and also make sure the kids could have a fun day. It was really, really nice.”

Funderburk also goes out of her way to let other programs and providers know about the benefits and mission of Maryland EXCELS.

As an observer for programs and providers who are seeking accreditation through the National Association for Family Child Care, Funderburk has the opportunity to encourage other family child care providers to take advantage of Maryland EXCELS and the extensive training available. She emphasizes the importance of building a foundation for their businesses as well as growing as child care and early education providers.

“It’s a win-win situation for all. If people don’t participate in credentialing or Maryland EXCELS or accreditation, you’re shorting yourself and your career goals,” she said.

Whether it’s nurturing the children and families in her child care or encouraging other family child care providers, Funderburk’s motivation is to ensure children are receiving the best possible care.

“I’ve been doing family child care for 31 years. And I always say, when I get to the end, I want to be a mentor just to encourage people to stay in family child care,” she said. “It is family.”
December 13, 2019 marked the 20th anniversary celebration of the opening of the first Judy P. Hoyer Center Early Learning Hub (Judy Center) in Maryland, at Cool Spring Elementary in Prince George’s County. Congressman Steny Hoyer, Dr. Nancy Grasmick, Prince George’s County delegates, and Prince George’s County Public Schools staff were in attendance along with the Judy Center partners to celebrate this occasion.

Thirteen additional centers opened across the State during the following year, and there are now 53 Judy Centers throughout Maryland. The Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) will mark this year-long anniversary with a series of celebrations honoring each of the original 13 sites. Each of the sites will hold community events, share activities on social media, their support over the years. The next event will be held on Saturday, January 25th at 9am at the Patuxent-Appeal Elementary Campus Appeal Building, 11655 H G Trueman Road, Lusby, MD.

Learning Day 2019
Child Care Choices, a Program of the Mental Health Association, Frederick Community College (FCC), the Interagency Early Childhood Committee (IECC), and the Frederick County Judy Center presented: Learning Day 2019: Mind Management—Just Breathe for Child Care Providers on Saturday, November 2, 2019. This was a full-day event, held on the campus of FCC, designed to enhance the professional development of child care providers in Frederick County. The opening session, Mind Management: Neuroscience, Self-Care and Life Success, presented by Frank J. Kros, MSW, JD-President of the Transformation Education Institute, showed attendees how to keep their minds in the best possible shape emotionally, psychologically and spiritually. Participants learned how to develop a high level of mental fitness and extraordinary psychological health. In addition, participants were shown how to accelerate their learning, deepen their relationships and effectively resolve stress.

Learning Day 2019 also featured workshop selections in the Child Development, Curriculum and Health, Safety and Nutrition Core of Knowledge areas, as well as a variety of child-related informational exhibits and included a 6-hour core of knowledge certificate as well as breakfast and lunch.

Evaluations of the overall day as well as each individual breakout session were overwhelmingly positive with 96% of the participants having indicated they would implement strategies learned during the conference.

Learning Day 2019 was made possible due to funding from the Early Childhood Advisory Council for Frederick County (known as the IECC) as part of a Preschool Development Grant and the wonderful collaboration between multiple agencies and institutions in Frederick County.
